

PLG Obtains Complete Defense Victory in Telecommunications Patent Trial

PLG recently obtained a complete defense victory for its client Intrado Inc., a leading provider of 9-1-1 support services to the telecommunications industry. Pitted in high-stakes litigation against one of the top ten global law firms, PLG successfully defended Intrado in a protracted litigation involving highly complex issues of patent infringement and indemnity in the telecommunications field. Although the action was originally filed in federal court, the parties agreed to submit the case to binding arbitration before a panel of three retired federal judges experienced in deciding complex patent and contract issues. After hearing the direct and cross-examination of ten fact witnesses and two technical experts and the opening statements and arguments of counsel, and reviewing more than 200 pages of pre-hearing and post-hearing briefs, the judges rendered a unanimous decision of in favor of Intrado, denying and dismissing the plaintiff's claims.
